Nancy Loeffler supports the firm's litigators with medical issues in a variety of cases including malpractice lawsuits, toxic torts litigation, and certain aspects of products liability.

Nancy teaches review study classes to help case managers achieve certification and developed a successful curriculum for case management review classes. She co-authored Compass, which became an educational standard for new case managers, and edited chapters in a popular review book. She was the chief nursing officer for Ambulatory Services prior to joining the firm.

In her spare time, Nancy enjoys reading, knitting, and time with her grandchildren watching hockey and horse shows.
